

From: mash@arizonaeha.org@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 12/6/01 3:38pm
Subject: MS Settlement

Windows XP now prohibits users from changing hardware at random. (if you test software and hardware products, you now have to go through the bureaucratic nightmare of having to ask Microsoft for a new license Key after changing hardware a couple of times.)

You wanna tell me how a software manufacturer has the legal right to tell you, (simply because you modified your hardware) you can no longer use what you already paid for? (unless you invest more time and money dealing with their licensing department)

CONGRATULATIONS: DOJ, THE MONOPOLY LIVES ON, BUT ITS OK BECAUSE ALL OF YOUR MASTERS ARE GETTING SUBSTANTIAL CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS. (I love this country!)